... better known as non-performing assets, or NPAs, in banking parlance. High street lenders like State Bank of India, Punjab & Sind Bank, Oriental Bank of Commerce, Dena Bank, Allahabad Bank and Bank of India are expected to auction 14,000 crore of problem loans before the close of the financial year two-year bankers said.

A spurt in activity is visible among public sector banks that are under pressure to improve their balance sheets. SBI plans to sell the largest chunk of around ₹1,200 crore, comprising a basket of 450

In this period, lenders like Bank of India succeeded in selling stress loans of close to ₹1,000 crore, while State Bank of India and Allahabad Bank sold nearly ₹400 crore each.

The revival in the bad loan market is good news for ABCs which went through a dull phase. While a higher percentage of problem loans with banks should generate good business for ABCs, local lenders, unsatisfied with the prices that auctions would fetch, have resisted from selling loans. Deals fell through following differences between them and ABCs over
